(C) For an entity whose gross annual receipts are more than $10,000,000, but less than or equal to $100,000,000 the effect of the decision will be any of the following:

(i) The decision will result in an increase or decrease of the entity's gross annual receipts for a fiscal year in the amount of $200,000 or more.

(3) Sources of income who are individuals. The effect of a decision is material as to an individual who is a source of income to an official if any of the following applies:

   (A) The decision will affect the individual's income, investments, or other tangible or intangible assets or liabilities (other than real property) by $1,000 or more; or

   (B) The decision will affect the individual's real property interest in a manner that is considered material under the following standards:

      Indirectly involved real property interest.

      (1) Real property, other than leaseholds. The financial effect of a governmental decision on real property which is indirectly involved in the governmental decision is presumed not to be material. This presumption may be rebutted by proof that there are specific circumstances regarding the governmental decision, its financial effect, and the nature of the real property in which the public official has an economic interest, which make it reasonably foreseeable that the decision will have a material financial effect on the real property in which the public official has an interest. Examples of specific circumstances that will be considered include, but are not limited to, circumstances where the decision affects:

         (i) The development potential or income-producing potential of the real property in which the official has an economic interest;

         (ii) The use of the real property in which the official has an economic interest;

         (iii) The character of the neighborhood including, but not limited to, substantial effects on traffic, view, privacy, intensity of use, noise levels, air emissions, or similar traits of the neighborhood.

Real property leaseholds. The financial effect of a governmental decision on real property in which a public official has a leasehold interest and which is indirectly involved in the governmental decision is presumed not to be material. This presumption may be rebutted by proof that there are specific circumstances regarding the governmental decision, its financial effect, and the nature of the real property in which the official has an economic interest, which make it reasonably foreseeable that the governmental decision will:

(i) Change the legally allowable use of the leased real property, and the lessee has a right to sublease the real property;
(ii) Change the lessee’s actual use of the real property;
(iii) Substantially change or significantly decrease the lessee’s use or enjoyment of the leased real property;
(iv) Increase or decrease the amount of rent for the leased property by 5% percent during any 12-month period following the decision; or
(v) Result in a change to the termination date of the lease.

(c) Nexus. Any reasonably foreseeable financial effect on a person who is a source of income to a public official is deemed material if the public official receives or is promised the income to achieve a goal or purpose which would be achieved, defeated, aided, or hindered by the decision.

87102.6, 87102.8 and 87103, Government Code.

The following standards apply to determine when the reasonably foreseeable financial effect of a governmental decision on an official’s financial interest, identified as a source of income under Section 87103(c), is material.

(a) Income from the Sale of Goods and Services: For income received by the official or his or her spouse for goods and services provided in the ordinary course of business, including a salary, the financial effect is material if:

(1) The source is a claimant, applicant, respondent, contracting party, or is otherwise named or identified as the subject of the proceeding; or
(2) The source is an individual that will be financially affected under the standards applied to an official in Regulation 18705.5, or the official knows or has reason to know that the individual has an interest in a business entity or real property that will be financially affected under the standards applied to a financial interest in Regulation 18705.1 or 18705.2, respectively; or

(3) The source is a nonprofit that will receive a measurable financial benefit or loss, or the official knows or has reason to know that the nonprofit has an interest in real property that will be financially affected under the standards applied to a financial interest in Regulation 18705.2; or

(4) The source is a business entity that will be financially affected under the standards as applied to a financial interest in Regulation 18705.1.

(b) Income from the Sale of Personal or Real Property: For income from the sale of personal or real property belonging to the official, or the official’s spouse if the property is community property, the financial effect of the decision is material if the official knows or has reason to know that the source of income is a claimant, applicant, respondent, contracting party, or is otherwise named or identified as the subject of the proceeding, or has an interest in any business entity or real property that will be financially affected under the standards applied to a financial interest in Regulation 18705.1 or 18705.2, respectively.

(c) Nexus. Any reasonably foreseeable financial effect on a person who is a source of income to a public official is deemed material if the public official receives or is promised the income to achieve a goal or purpose which would be achieved, defeated, aided, or hindered by the decision.

(d) Exception – Income from Retail Sales of a Business Entity: For purposes of applying the exception under Section 87103.5, the retail customers of a business entity constitute a significant segment of the public generally if the business is open to the public and the customers comprise a broad base of persons representative of the jurisdiction as a whole and not confined to any specialized interest. Income from an individual customer is not distinguishable from the amount of income received from other customers when the official is unable to recognize a significant monetary difference between the business provided by the individual customer and the general clientele of the business. An official is unable to recognize a significant monetary difference when either:

(1) The business is of the type that sales to any one customer will not have a significant impact on the business’s annual net sales; or

(2) The business has no records that distinguish customers by amount of sales, and the official has no other information that the customer provides significantly more income to the business than an average customer.
