FPPC Launches New Features to Expand Public Access to Officials' Financial Disclosures

FPPC introduces new search and export tools to the Public Official Financial Disclosure Portal, making it easier for Californians to access and analyze Form 700 filings.

SACRAMENTO, CA — The California Fair Political Practices Commission (FPPC) today announced the launch of new searches and export tools of its Public Official Financial Disclosure Portal, expanding the public's ability to search, review, and download financial disclosure information filed by public officials.

The latest update introduces several new features, including the ability to export search results and filings, conduct targeted searches for gifts and travel payments, and search across multiple filing years simultaneously.

"Financial disclosure is an essential part of ensuring transparency and accountability in government," said FPPC Chair Adam E. Silver. "These new tools give Californians greater access to information about the financial interests of public officials and make it easier to examine that information. By expanding the public's ability to search and download these records, we are continuing our work to make government information more accessible and meaningful to the people we serve."

Under California's Political Reform Act, public officials who make or influence governmental decisions are required to disclose certain financial interests through a Form 700, Statement of Economic Interests. These disclosures provide the public with information about officials' financial interests, including sources of income, investments, real property interests, gifts, and travel payments.

The FPPC launched the Public Official Financial Disclosure Portal in March 2026, providing a centralized online platform for accessing and searching Form 700 filings.

Phase II builds on those capabilities with several new features:

- Expanded Export Options: Users can download search results as PDF filings or Excel spreadsheets. PDF exports compile redacted filings into a downloadable ZIP file, while Excel exports offer summary information or detailed financial disclosure data.

- Enhanced Gifts and Travel Search: Users can search specifically for gifts reported on Schedule D or travel payments reported on Schedule E, allowing for more targeted review of disclosed financial interests.

- Multiple Filing Year Search: Users can select and search across multiple filing years simultaneously, making it easier to review disclosures over time.

The portal includes Form 700 filings submitted to the FPPC beginning January 1, 2025, by officials subject to Government Code Section 87200, as well as certain historical filings and filings from Groundwater Sustainability Agency officials.

The new export capabilities also include safeguards designed to maintain system reliability when processing large or repeated requests. Users can monitor the status of their exports and receive notifications of applicable limits.

The expanded portal reflects the FPPC's ongoing efforts to improve public access to disclosure information and strengthen transparency in California government.
